
playstation games What is a Good Business to Start?

Posted by Raymond Boyle - 2009/07/17 08:59

The 100 top Internet business opportunities are primarily Network Marketing companies (also called Multi-Level Marketing, MLM, or direct sales). These companies provide a compensation plan and pay structure that really can't be beat by any other type of Internet business opportunity, and have produced more millionaires and poverty to wealth stories than virtually any other industry. Recently, Donald Trump and Robert Kiyosaki have both endorsed the direct sales industry. Mr. Trump stated on the David Letterman show that if he had to start from scratch and build a financial empire today that he would start with a network marketing company. When the audience laughed he said, That's why I'm sitting up here and you are all sitting out there! The problem, however, lies in the fact that virtually every one of these companies, despite their brilliant business models, trains their representatives in an old-fashioned, out-dated approach to marketing. As a result the average new representative quits within the first 90 days of business. So when asking, What is a good business to start? and considering network marketing to be the top wealth builder of them all, there is some essential information and background history you will need to know to succeed. In the 70s, it was much more possible, although still challenging, to build an MLM company by just talking to friends and family members and bringing them to presentations about the business. During that time period the industry had tremendous success, not only in the U.S., but also in countries all over the world. But times have changed drastically since then. Thirty years ago there was no cable TV, no VCRs or DVDs or Blockbuster video stores, no Playstation or electronic games of any sophistication, and most of all??-No Internet! Back then virtually all there was to do on a Saturday night was go bowling, go to a drive in movie theatre, or go to a home meeting about a business opportunity. Today, people have so much technology to interact with, that they just don't have time for much human interaction. Secondly, today people are so inundated with salesmen coming at them from every direction that they have to tune much of it out to maintain their psychological health. Furthermore, people today tend to get downright hostile when confronted with any type of new opportunity. They are on information overload and will reject you before you ever get a chance to say, Gooby berries from the Antarctic will help you live to 150. But thirdly, and the primary influence the internet has had on our society, is that people don't socialize or interact at all the way they did thirty years ago. People are so absorbed with the things they can do at home on the internet that social gatherings have, to a large extent, become a thing of the past. So the most effective way to build a network marketing business in the information age is to bring the message to the place where people join together, connect, socialize, and do business-The Internet! Let's get back to the original question, What is a good business to start? If you combine the power of the internet with an MLM business you will not only succeed at network marketing, but you will do it ten times faster than you ever could have using the old-fashioned methods. This is what the top earners in the industry are doing today, and this is what we teach and train people to do at Kevin Thomas Marketing. Make Money Taking Surveys:<http://mmtsrvy.blogspot.com/#>

=====